Department of Emergency Medicine, Division of Toxicology
Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center El Paso
El Paso, Texas

Erica Guerrero, M.S., M.P.A.S., PA-C, is a physician assistant for the Department of Emergency Medicine at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center El Paso. Ms. Guerrero coordinated the “Hurricane Project” for the Southwest Center for Pediatric Environmental Health (SWCPEH). The opportunity with SWCPEH led to an interest in topics related to pediatric environmental health. She graduated from Georgetown University with a Master of Science in biohazardous threat agents and emerging infectious diseases and received a Master of Physician Assistant Studies from Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center. Prior to her career in medicine, she managed the Hospital Preparedness Program (HPP) for the Far West Texas region with the Border Regional Advisory Council (BorderRAC). She has expertise in complex planning and research in emergency preparedness and hospital preparedness.

Objectives: Upon completion of this session, the participant should be able to:

- Identify environmental hazards associated with flooding and the potential impacts to home and school.
- Recognize the role of health care practitioners and other community leaders in disaster recovery.
- Identify children’s unique vulnerabilities to environmental risks.

Accreditation: The Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center El Paso Paul L. Foster School of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (ACCME) to provide continuing medical education for physicians.
